

Butterfly
Conservation

Saving butterflies, moths and their habitats

PAM HARDEMAN

Small Tortoiseshell butterfly

ADAM MIDDLETON

Red Admiral butterfly

Butterfly Files Project

Do you know your Red Admiral from your Small Tortoiseshell?

These species are commonly confused. Join our project and discover more about the wonderful world of butterflies and moths.

Butterfly Conservation and the Butterfly Files

Butterflies and moths are key indicators of the health of our environment. They connect us to nature and contribute to our wellbeing. Join our growing network of recorders and volunteers to support our work.

Do butterflies and moths intrigue you? Would you like to gain new skills to help conserve them? If so, get in touch to find out how you can get more involved and become part of our network of amazing volunteers.

There will be opportunities to:

- Attend FREE workshops and events
- Gain skills in butterfly and moth recording
- Participate in surveying and monitoring programmes
- Network with other volunteers and organisations
- Make a practical difference for butterfly and moth conservation

For more information, contact the Project Officer, Rose Cremin at:

E rcremin@butterfly-conservation.org

M 07881 583932

Find us on

www.facebook.com/NIButterfly

www.twitter.com/bcni_

Find out more, visit:

www.butterfly-conservation.org